Summary of conditions for March 2009

March 2009 Temperature and Precipitation Summary

March 1st - 15th: March began with high pressure over Mexico, bringing warm dry air into Arizona, causing daytime temperatures to be 10 to 20°F above average. By the 6th, a strong, warm low pressure system began moving across the state, bringing rain showers statewide through the 10th. The system was too warm for snowfall, so the rain began melting the snowpack at the higher elevations. Another colder, low pressure system moved through from the 12th through the 15th, bringing snowfall to the higher elevations. The warm system brought 0.44" of rain to the Bisbee-Douglas airport and 0.36" of rain to Coronado national Monument on the 9th. The colder system dropped 2.5" of snow at Alpine on the 13th, and 2.0" of snow on Mt. Lemmon on the 14th.

March 16th - 31st: By the 16th, after the storm system had passed, temperatures began to rise above seasonal averages across the state as high pressure again started to develop. However, another very strong low pressure system over the Northwest was developing, and the extreme pressure gradient (large pressure difference across a relative short spatial distance) created strong winds across the west. Wind gusts up to 64 mph were measured at Flagstaff on the 22nd as the low pressure system crossed Nevada and Utah, brushing across northern Arizona. On the 23rd, the north rim of the Grand Canyon received 3.0" of snow. Temperatures never rebounded back above their seasonal average as 3 more cold fronts moved across Wyoming, Utah and Colorado, just touching northern and northeastern Arizona. The lack of moisture with these storms left Arizona unusually dry for March, which is typically our wettest winter month. The greatest weather impact in March was very strong winds associated with the extreme pressure differences.

In This Issue: Graphs of the March daily maximum and minimum temperatures, precipitation, and mean daily dew points for Flagstaff, Phoenix, and Tucson; March climate statistics for Phoenix, Tucson and Flagstaff; daily maximum and minimum temperatures and precipitation for 70 stations across Arizona; maps of the mean monthly maximum and minimum temperatures and precipitation across the state for March; and graphs of the mean monthly temperature and precipitation for 2009 for Tucson, Phoenix, and Flagstaff. Climate calendars for Flagstaff, Phoenix, Tucson, Prescott, Winslow and Yuma, including daily and monthly normals and extremes, for each month of the year, can be downloaded directly from the State Climate website. See page 20 of this report for calendar abbreviations. Data are preliminary and are from the National Weather Service Forecast Offices in Flagstaff, Phoenix and Tucson. **Note: The discrepancy between the Statewide Temperature and Precipitation values for Phoenix, Flagstaff and Tucson and the daily values in their graphs are due to the reporting times. The Statewide Temperature and Precipitation values are taken at 5pm, while the official daily records at the airports are taken from Midnight to Midnight.

Monthly Temperature and Precipitation for Flagstaff, Phoenix, and Tucson

Flagstaff, Phoenix and Tucson all started March with maximum temperatures 20°F above average, then dropped to near average temperatures for the next ten days, followed by another week with temperatures 10 to 15°F above average. By the 21st, temperatures settled back to near average values for the rest of the month. Minimum temperatures remained near average all month, after starting 5 to 15°F above average during the first week of March. Phoenix and Tucson had another period of unseasonably warm nights between the 17th and 22nd. Flagstaff had measurable precipitation on the 9th, 12th and 22nd, for a total of 0.22", 2.40" below normal. Tucson had measurable precipitation on the 8th and 9th, for a total of 0.18", 0.63" below normal, while Phoenix had no measurable precipitation in March, 1.07" below normal. Dew points were low all month, and the drying is especially apparent during the last week of March, when dew points fell into the single digits.
