

A Breezing Scholar

by Krishnan Balasubramanian

This gentle breeze flows through gardens,
Stopping by jasmines, collecting their fragrance,
Making love to roses, garnering their scent,
Climbing over hills, exploring their beauty,
Uniting with clouds, hoarding their moisture,
Creating harmonious whispers with pines,
Propagating waves through daffodils,
Choreographing trees and flowers,
Permeating nightingales' melody.
The breeze's in love with all nature's creations;
Synthesizing varied experiences.

A scholar's like this gentle breeze,
He harnesses all opportunities,
Gaining experience through interactions,
Amassing knowledge through learning.
Uniting with learning tools- as if
In love, focused, indulged in obsessive learning,
Conceiving harmony through learning.

A Scholar propagates the knowledge he garners,
He permeates with his radiance,
As his knowledge matures, saturated with Moisture of experience, he pours the rain of wisdom
Serving the humanity, eradicating darkness
With his radiance, opulence, gathered from everywhere
From every experience and interaction, like this gentle breeze.
