COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course continues our year-long examination of the human event from the Renaissance (1600 AD) to the present. Honors 272 is designed to introduce you to some of the basic themes and methods of the social sciences (Anthropology, Economics, History, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, etc.). Our course readings are divided into three thematic parts, chronologically arranged, each highlighting major trends in socio-political thought:

1. The focus on universal human nature and the role of the individual in society (Hobbes, Locke, Rousseau, Smith, Marx)
2. The rise of cultural relativism, seeing the world from a western perspective (Durkheim, Weber, Mead)
3. Non-western perspectives on the role of culture in society and the fate of society in an increasingly global world (Gandhi, Fanon, Appiah)

Throughout the course, in some sense breaking the chronology, we will be reflecting on how many of the main theoretical issues are mirrored in fictional works (Gogol, Bulgakov, Achebe).

COURSE GOALS:

We study the development of social and political theories from the 17th century to the present not just out of historical curiosity, but in order to build the critical understanding needed to assess our own most basic values and those which prevail in our time. While pursuing this goal, this course seeks to 1) engage you in a critical evaluation of primary texts in social and political theory; 2) teach you to delve into fictional works with greater critical appreciation; 3) help you develop the skills to critically analyze others' arguments and to develop your own arguments in response; and 3) to practice your own expression of clear and persuasive arguments in oral and written forms.

COURSE STRUCTURE:

This course has a seminar format, relying heavily on in-class discussion and your participation.

1. READING: There is no way around it, reading requirements for this quarter are heavy. Take care not to fall behind. When reading, you should evaluate the texts for their internal coherence and plausibility as well as for the way they speak to their historical contexts. You will find that this level of comprehension demands a significant investment of time.

2. PARTICIPATION (20% of your grade): Participation includes three things: attendance, preparation, and discussion. Attendance is mandatory, meaning that your grade will suffer if you miss classes. Participation includes preparation. The seminar will only be as successful as you make it, and on that account, it is crucial that you come to class with a well-developed sense of the readings and prepared to contribute. Participation includes class discussion. Remember the purpose of this class is for us, as a group, to discuss the materials and to explore our ideas about them. For this reason, oral contributions count measurably toward your grade. Do not forget to bring your texts to class. We will consult them frequently.

You will also be expected to attend 2 of the 3 films being shown this semester and write a short memo about how the film relates to what we have read so far. Movie memos are due in class on the Tuesday after the movie showing. If you go to all three films and turn in memos for them on time you will receive extra credit.

3. THE QUOTATIONS PROJECT (20% of your grade)

In a course in which we are exploring culture, it is only appropriate that we keep our fingers on the pulse of our own cultures. In this spirit, we will be keeping a weekly log of intriguing, puzzling, irritating, exciting or otherwise noteworthy quotations that we run across throughout the quarter and we will discuss those quotes.

What kinds of quotations should we post?

Quotations can come from anywhere EXCEPT anything we are currently reading. Anywhere is meant literally - movies, newspapers, songs, etc.

How should we post quotations?

Each quotation should include its source and how you felt it connected with things we have talked about in class. (Sample quotations will be posted on the board). The discussion board will be divided into weeks for ease of navigation. Each new quote should be its own thread.

How are we going to discuss quotations?

By using the "reply" function, students can comment on posted quotations and consider the issues raised by the quotes. RESPECTFUL discussion is required. Sample discussions are presented in the Sample Quotation forum on Blackboard.

How will we be graded?

I will read the discussion board by Sunday to grade your participation. You will be graded on a scale of 1-10 (10 being the best score) on the quality of your post. People often write about things they feel passionately about, and this makes the quotation project a dynamic and exciting forum. You will never be graded on your viewpoint, but rather how well you present your argument and connect it with the material we are discussing in class.

Posting minimums for each type of posting:

In an effort to make sure that everyone supplies a quote at least a third of the time, the class will be broken up into three groups (A, B, C). You MUST supply a quote by 10pm on Wednesday if it is your week (as indicated in the syllabus below), and you MUST reply to a quote by 10pm on Saturday if it is your week to reply. Beyond the minimums, you are free to post as much as you like, when you like. If you have a fantastic quote, but it is not your week, by all means post it. You will not be graded on quantity, although if you have more than one entry per week I'll grade you based on the strongest entry.

5. PAPERS (60% of your grade): There will be three 5-7 page papers, each counting 20% toward your final grade. I will hand out questions approximately two weeks before the due date. Late papers will be penalized 5% (6 points) for each day past the deadline. I will give extensions only in emergencies; please try to let me know in advance.

PLAGIARISM:

Knowingly presenting another person's language or ideas as your own constitutes plagiarism. Don't do it. All Barrett Honors College faculty have access to a service that checks an extensive database of essays and notes to detect plagiarism. Plagiarism, the theft of intellectual property, is a serious crime that undermines everything we are trying to accomplish in this course. Repercussions will include failure of the paper AND failure of the course, and may include referral to the Student Conduct Committee of the University and expulsion from the University. If you have any questions, talk to me before you submit your paper. Students will be required to submit an electronic version of formal papers along with their printed ones.

STUDENT CONDUCT:

Students must conduct themselves according to the ASU policies posted online at <http://www.asu.edu/studentlife/judicial>. These include the ASU Student Code of Conduct and the Student Academic Integrity Policy. For information on BHC policies for grievances and grade complaints, go the BHC web page at <http://honors.asu.edu> and follow the links for Prospective and Current Students, then Advising and Honors Curriculum, then Academic Advising Office, then Student Academic Grievance Procedures.

ADDITIONAL NOTES: The instructor reserves the right to modify the syllabus during the semester. The student agrees to this by registering and remaining in the course. Also, if you have any special needs or disabilities see me after the first class so that we can make arrangements. Student must turn off cell phones during class. Students responsible for continual distractions during class in this regard will lose in-class participation points.

GRADING FORMAT FOR THE COURSE

COURSE GRADING:

I will be grading using the following scale for the course:

100-99% = A+, 98-93 = A, 92-90 = A-, 89-88 = B+, 87-83 = B, 82-80 = B- etc.

GRADING FOR CLASSROOM PARTICIPATION:

Everyday at the end of class, I will give you a grade for participation using the following scale:

- 3) This student arrives on time, prepared with comments and/or questions about the readings, often initiates discussion, but does not try to dominate the class, listens carefully to what other students say and responds to their comments, and does not carry on a conversation with people around him other than participating in the general discussion.
- 2) This student participates in some of the discussion, giving evidence of having read some of the assignment, does not disrupt the class, and pays close attention to what others are saying during the discussion.
- 1) This student is overly quiet, rarely participating, and, if called upon, seems unprepared. He/she may seem disinterested in the class or in the ideas of other class members.
- 0) This student is either absent or as good as absent. He/She never participates, sleeps during class, and disrupts other class members by talking to others around him/her rather than participating in the general discussion.

You will receive two grades in the course for your participation that will add up attendance (worth 60% of your participation grade) and class participation (worth 40% of your class participation grade): one for the first half of the course and one of the second half. The purpose of the midterm grade is to let you know if you need to improve your participation before the course is over.

QUOTATION PROJECT GRADING:

I will be using the following scale:

- 10 Thought-provoking quote (with citation) or response to a quote that is clearly connected to the themes of the course. Respectful academic language is used.
- 9 Interesting quote (with citation) or response, but with a weaker connection to the material we are covering in the course. There may be some errors in the grammar or word choice.
8. A quote or response is offered, but the connection to the course is weak and the language is hurried. There are errors with word choice and punctuation that detract from the argument. The citation may be missing from the quote.
7. It is unclear how the quote or response relates to the course. There are major errors in grammar and word choice that cloud the writer's meaning.

- 0 You did not participate for the week OR you posted something that was offensive OR used disrespectful language (write to me before posting if you are worried about how the content of your quote or response will be perceived.)

I reserve the right to pull any posting.
