23 What did you like most about this course?

very informative and prepares you for the real world

I really like the assignments. They are almost too much work for one assignment but they help to really learn the material.

At first I was really irritated that I had to buy the professor's book because it seemed like a professor was just trying to make more money but I have to say that this is the most helpful book I've ever had because it explains things well and then walks you through an example.

The projects were relevant.

The item I liked the most about this course was the Textbook material which was also written by Dr. Chen. His knowledge in Service Oriented Computing is excellent.

A chance to apply the concepts to practical applications with the assignments.

The projects/Assignments were writing programs, and not papers - I learned a great deal from this course.

the programming assignments were fun

24 What did you like least about this course?

i had no problem with the class

I don't know that I liked this least but one thing that aggravated me is most times we'd get assignments but wouldn't have the lecture to completely learn how to do them until a few days before they were due. I like to finish my assignments as early as possible and there were a few times that I didn't know how to do parts of the assignments because we hadn't gone over that yet. It would have helped if we were informed that those lectures would help to do the assignment.

Oh and I hate group assignments. It makes it even more difficult being online to do it. Ours did fortunately go well, and I had good team mates but that's not normally the case.

Textbook needs a better editor.

What I liked least is the amount of quizzes, which were given after every assignment.

Many of the exams and quizzes seemed better at testing my ability to take tests and not be tricked...instead of my understanding of the material. I lost points throughout the class not because I didn't understand the material but because I didn't understand the question being asked and on a timed online test, there's no practical way to ask for clarification.

Working with team members for two of the assignments
the programming assignments took along time to code
